

Lebendige Luppe

Project Presentation at the 1st Interregional Thematic Seminar "Integrated green infrastructure and biodiversity conservation"

Leipzig, January 25, 2024

Dr. Maria Vlaic I NABU Sachsen Prof. Dr. Sylke Nissen I Universität Leipzig

Project structure

LEBENDIGE LUPPE

➤ Duration: 2012 - 2023

Sponsors and partners:

➤ Project goals: partial restoration of the northern floodplain landscape "Leipziger Auwald"

2013 Flooding in the Leipzig alluvial forest

Project area

Project partners and fields of activity

Social science areas of work

- > Development of a communication concept
- > Target group and stakeholder analysis
- > Development and support of informal participation
- Support for project PR
- Media response analysis
- > Studies of the perception of nature and local leisure behavior
- > Analysis of conditions for the success of public infrastructure projects
- > Analysis, monitoring and development of internal project processes

The logics of institutions

- > Administrative logic
- ➤ Scientific logic
- ➤ Media logic
- > Logic of environmental organisations

Stakeholder analysis

LEBENDIGE LUPPE

Power – Interest – Matrix

Project workshop on stakeholder analysis

LEBENDIGE LUPPE

Power – Interest – Matrix

(Photo: Lebendige Luppe)

Opportunities for informal participation

(Photos: Lebendige Luppe)

Participation lessons learned

- There is no compulsion to offer participation in every possible case.
- ➤ If citizen participation is seen as a tool for conflict management, it comes too late.
- > Systematic stakeholder analysis and stakeholder management are indispensable groundwork for any participation initiative.
- ➤ Participation needs sufficient support with financial and human resources.

Diverging demands and interests

allotment garden

Mosquitoes

energie

recreation

More water!

missunderstanding

flooding

Malaria

Urban development concept

Wet cellar Flood protection

Floodplain landscape?

forestry restrictions

natural reserve

science

Contact:

Dr. Maria Vlaic I vlaic@nabu-sachsen.de Prof. Dr. Sylke Nissen I nissen@uni-leipzig.de

Förderer

für Umwelt, Naturschutz und nukleare Sicherheit

Bundesministerium für Umwelt, Naturschutz und nukleare Sicherheit

Bundesamt für Naturschutz

Sächsische Landesstiftung Natur und Umwelt Naturschutzfonds Sächsische Landesstiftung Natur und Umwelt Naturschutzfonds

Projektpartner

Amt für Stadtgrün und Gewässer

NABU-Landesverband Sachsen e.V.

UNIVERSITAT

Universität Leipzig

Helmholtz-Zentrum für Umweltforschung (UFZ)

Stadt Schkeuditz

Das Projekt "Lebendige Luppe" wird durch das Bundesamt für Naturschutz leben.natur.vielfalt mit Mitteln des Bundesministeriums für Umwelt, Naturschutz und nukleare Sicherheit im Rahmen des Bundesprogramms Biologische Vielfalt gefördert. Die "Lebendige Luppe" ist ein Schlüsselprojekt des Grünen Ringes Leipzig und des NABU Leipzig.

